

CALL FOR PAPERS

THE RAVEN'S WINGS: I EAPSA Online Seminar (21st April 2025)

From EAPSA (Edgar Allan Poe Spanish Association), we warmly invite you to participate in our Work-in-Progress Seminar on Edgar Allan Poe, his literary work, and its reception. The aim of this seminar is to foster dialogue among graduate and postgraduate students, PhD candidates, and early-career researchers currently working on Edgar Allan Poe's oeuvre.

This event offers a valuable opportunity to share work-in-progress research, receive constructive feedback, and engage with both peers and Poe scholars in a supportive environment. It will also provide an occasion to deepen understanding of the American author and explore interpretations of his oeuvre from diverse perspectives and schools of criticism.

This online seminar emphasizes collaborative discussion rather than formal presentations. Participants are encouraged to share completed research, draft papers, emerging ideas, or experimental approaches. Each participant will be allocated 15 minutes for a brief presentation, followed by feedback and discussion.

Eligibility:

This seminar is open to graduate, postgraduate, and doctoral students, as well as early-career researchers whose investigations focus on Edgar Allan Poe. We welcome submissions addressing any aspect of Poe's literary production, life, reception, influence, or legacy.

Submission Guidelines:

- Submissions and presentations may be in English or Spanish, though English is encouraged to reach a broader audience.
- Abstracts should be 200–300 words and include a tentative title, and 5 keywords.
- Submissions must include a brief biographical note (max. 250 words).
- Proposals should be sent to theravenswings@gmail.com by March 15th, 2025. Participants will receive an acknowledgment of receipt for their proposals and, if selected, a notification of acceptance.
